

Education Depends on Quality Water

Kentucky's top industries depend on water.

Water directly impacts school operations and maintaining safe and functional school facilities. Access to clean, dependable water supports students and improves academic performance. Access to water at school improves student concentration, academic performance, and is essential for hands-on learning in subjects like chemistry and biology.

Louisville Water provides high-quality and award-winning water that undergoes rigorous daily testing and proactive treatment to address lead risks. This reliable, consistent support and infrastructure allows students and staff members to thrive in a safe, educational environment.

49 Catholic schools educating around 12,800 students in Louisville

89 private schools educating around 28,500 students in Louisville

168 public schools educating around 97,000 students in Louisville

1.3 million gallons used daily by the education sector in Louisville

To learn more about how Louisville Water can deliver results for education, head to:

WaterGrowsKY.com

Education Depends on Quality Water

Water Grows Kentucky's Economy

By providing great tasting, safe water, Louisville Water is the lifeline of Kentucky's top industries. Louisville Water partners with several local economic development agencies, utilities and state partners to ensure your business succeeds in Louisville.

Abundant Source of Water

With 75 billion gallons of water passing by Louisville daily, the Ohio River gives Kentucky businesses peace of mind knowing that the water they need to operate will be there when they need it. Louisville Water produces 138 million gallons of drinking water daily, which is less than 1% of the daily Ohio River flow.

Investment in Kentucky

Louisville Water ranks as one of the nation's premier water utilities, with rates among the lowest in the region. Louisville Water and its partners are investing nearly $123 million in infrastructure upgrades to water systems in Kentucky, serving as a model for future partnerships and economic growth.

Learn how Louisville Water can grow your business:

WaterGrowsKY.com

